THE OBJECTIVE

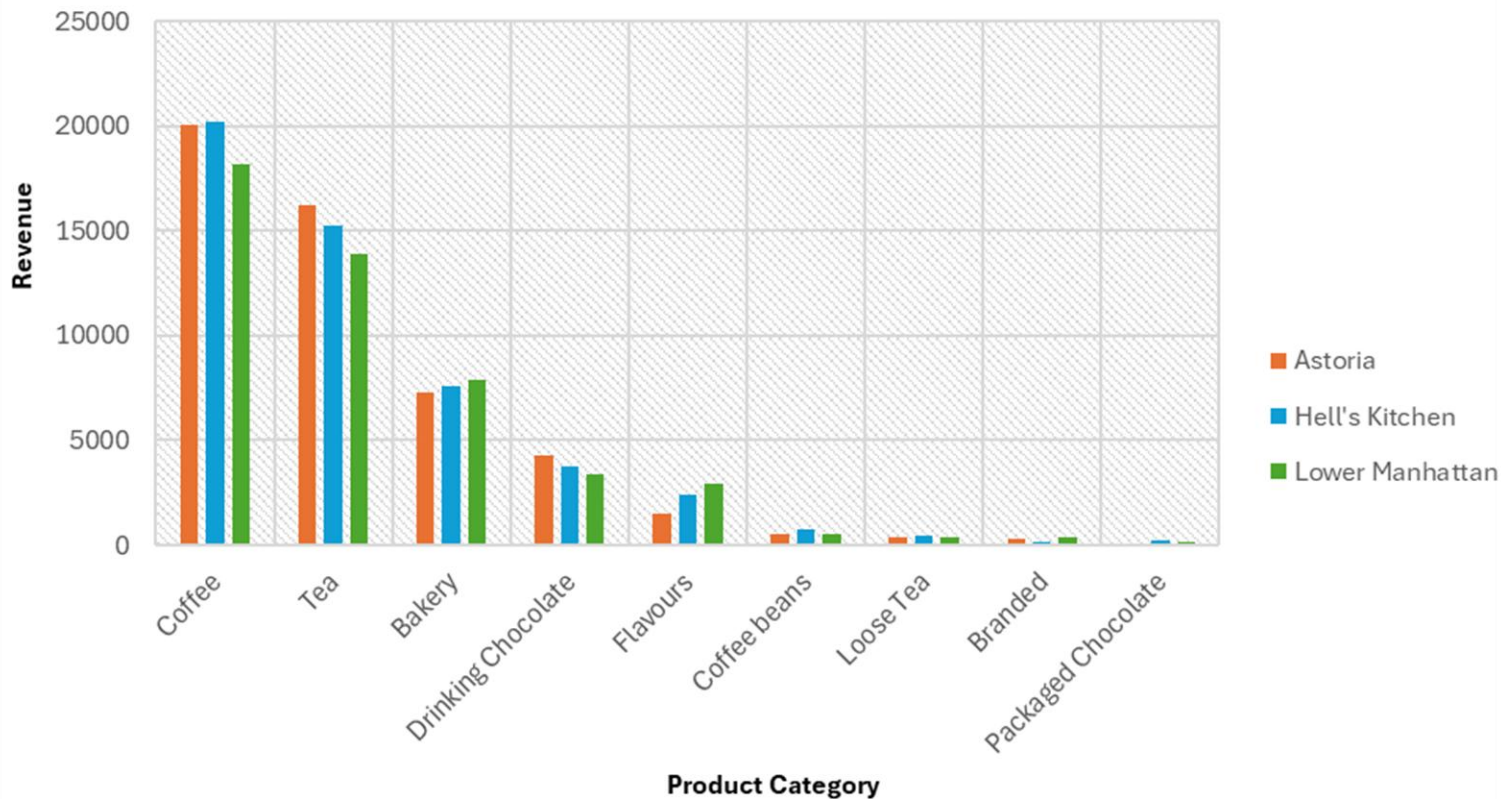

Bright Coffee's objective is to become a recognized leader in its target market for providing outstanding premium bagged coffees and specialty coffee beverages.

The presentation will be assisting the business in answering performance-based insights regarding its sales/revenue across three branches and where there is room for improvement.

PRODUCT CATEGORY PERFORMANCE BY STORE

Total Categorical Product Revenue

What's Working

- ❖ Coffee (39%) and Tea (30%) are the best-selling categories across all locations.
- ❖ Bakery ranks third, showing steady performance across locations.
- ❖ Astoria leads in Coffee & Tea volume which suggests a strong customer demand for the core beverages.
- ❖ Hell's Kitchen slightly outperforms others in total transactions.
- ❖ Lower Manhattan sells more niche products (Flavours & Branded).

What's Not Working

- ❖ Packaged Chocolate, Branded Goods, Coffee Beans, Loose Tea together make up less than 4% of sales across all stores.

Recommendations

- ❖ Focus on best-sellers by promoting Coffee & Tea more (combos, loyalty deals, seasonal offerings).
- ❖ For underperforming categories consider discontinuing or repositioning.
- ❖ Boost Lower Manhattan with targeted offers or community engagement.
- ❖ Grow what's steady such expanding the Bakery line because it has high engagement and a stable demand.

PRODUCT PERFORMANCE BY STORE

10 Highest Performing Product Types Revenue

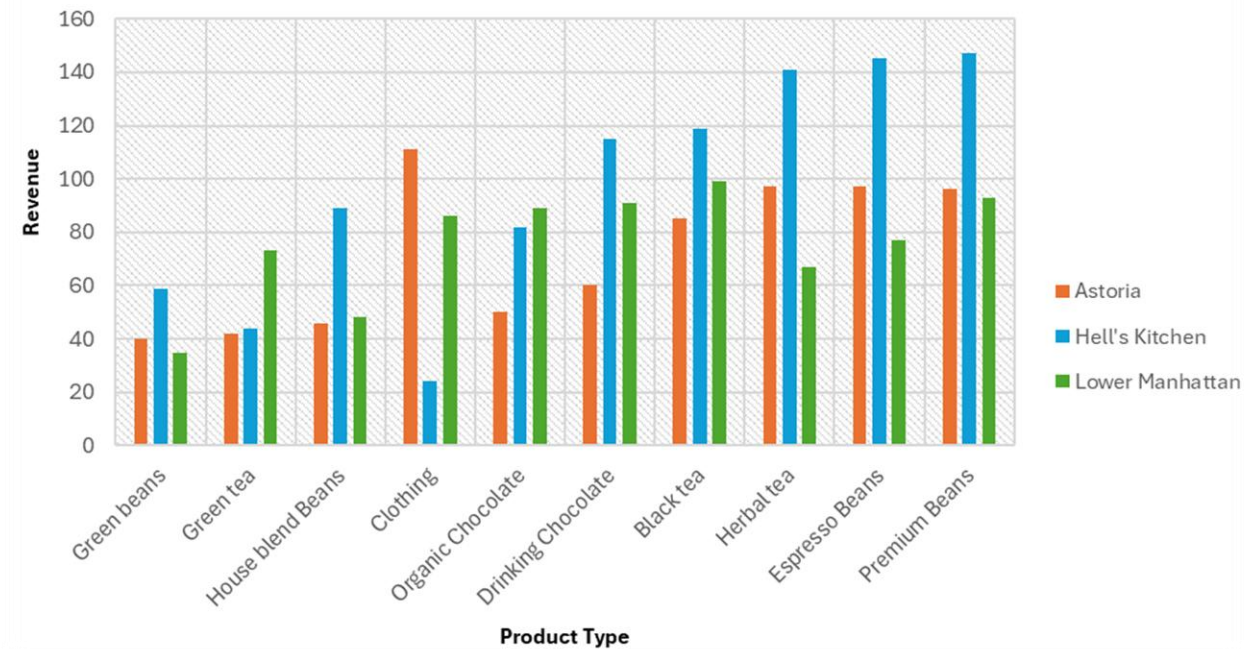

What's Working

- ❖ Product performance is consistent across all locations with drinks such as Brewed Chai Tea (17.2K), Gourmet Brewed Coffee (16.9K), Barista Espresso (16.4K) all together making up 42% of top 10 sales. The only popular food item is scones from the top 10 highest sales.

What's Not Working

- ❖ Items across all locations which sell less than 150 units.

10 Lowest Performing Product Types Revenue

Recommendations

- ❖ Double down on top 5 drinks by prioritising in marketing, menu design, and staff upselling.
- ❖ Expand on food options which are in the same line as scones such as pastries, muffins, or warm food.
- ❖ Most bottom items don't justify shelf space, so consider discontinuing or seasonal placement only on the low performing items.
- ❖ Too many similar tea and bean options may confuse customers and split sales so try to streamline for clarity and efficiency.

PRODUCT REVENUE

PRODUCTS	REVENUE
Chocolate Croissant	R 3076.00
Earl Grey Rg	R 3053.00
Dark chocolate Lg	R 3029.00
Morning Sunrise Chai Rg	R 3026.00
Columbian Medium Roast Rg	R 3013.00
Latte	R 2990.00
Sustainably Grown Organic Lg	R 2961.00
Traditional Blend Chai Rg	R 2955.00
Spicy Eye Opener Chai Lg	R 2951.00
Peppermint Rg	R 2949.00

- ❖ A balanced mix of baked goods, coffee, and tea/chai indicates customers are engaging across categories.
- ❖ 3 out of the top 10 are chai blends , so you need to tailor promotions for this growing niche.

- ❖ Peppermint, spicy chai, and dark chocolate items perform well, consider rotating seasonal highlights.
- ❖ Pair croissants and lattes or offer "Tea & Treat" bundles for increased basket value

TIME OF DAY REVENUE

Branch's Time of the Day Revenue

Time of Day	% of Sales	Key Insights
Morning	55%	Peak sales window suggesting strongest performance in both volume and quantity across all locations.
Afternoon	36%	Solid midday traffic which is ideal for combo deals (e.g., drinks + bakery), especially tea and light snacks.
Evening	10%	Lowest sales period

Recommendations

- Prioritize Mornings: Maximize stock levels, barista staff, and marketing during this time.
- Afternoon Bundling: Push coffee & pastry or tea & snack combos to boost average order value.
- Evening Engagement: Introduce promotions like “Evening Chill Deals” or offer dessert/decaf pairings. Try loyalty rewards, happy hour offers, or takeaway packs.

WEEK-DAYS REVENUE

KEY TAKEAWAYS

Weekdays outperform weekends, especially Monday – Friday.

Saturday is unexpectedly the slowest day try to investigate store hours, local events, or competitive offerings.

Consider launching weekday loyalty programs, Friday flash promos, or weekend-specific bundles to balance demand.

Week Days	Performance	Insight
Friday (21,701)	Highest	Peak sales day consider end-of-week promotions and extended hours.
Thursday (21,654)	Strong	Consistent weekday traffic, optimize inventory and staff coverage.
Monday (21,643)	High	Strong start-of-week sales with potential for “Monday kickstart” deals.
Wednesday (21,310)	Solid	Midweek performance is steady and good for maintaining regular flow.
Tuesday (21,202)	Average	Mid-tier day is stable, but lower than neighboring days.
Sunday (21,096)	Below average	Slower than weekdays, but not significantly which highlights the opportunity for family promos.
Saturday (20,510)	Lowest	Surprisingly, low weekend performance may benefit you from targeting tourists, events, or leisure-driven promotions.

CONCLUSION

- ❖ Coffee and tea are the top-selling categories, especially in the morning, which drives over 55% of total sales.
- ❖ Bakery items (like croissants) and chocolate products are strong performers, ideal for upselling with beverages.

- ❖ Fridays are the busiest day, while weekends underperform, suggesting room for targeted promotions.
- ❖ Astoria leads in tea sales, while Hell's Kitchen excels in bakery and coffee.

- ❖ Chai and flavored teas are growing in popularity which offers a promising niche to expand.
- ❖ Focus on morning promotions, bundle offers, and boosting weekend traffic for overall growth
